

Learning to ride the waves of pregnancy, birth and early fatherhood

Newsletter Fathers Day Edition June 2008

We are pleased to welcome all fathers, grandfathers, uncles, adoptive fathers, carers etc. to their special day. 'Fathers Make a World of Difference'

Fathers-To-Be are offering an afternoon in Brighton for expectant and new dads on Saturday, 12 July from 1-4 PM £20 (includes F2B Handbook). Call to reserve your place.

Fathers-To-Be supports expectant and new dads through reinforcing their relationship with themselves, their partners, their babies, and the healthcare professionals caring for them. Riding the waves of pregnancy, birth and early parenthood involves supporting a woman's rhythm while learning to maintain your own balance.

A THOUGHT FROM ELMER POSTLE: As our society's approach to parenting evolves, men are coming into closer proximity to early childcare. This may be a part of progress in childrearing and, possibly at the same time, it may be a necessity as the extended family becomes, well... over-extended. Either way, men (including this one) are spending more time looking after their children than their fathers did. "What about fathers and childcare?" (full article) Latest F2B News:

The film Orgasmic Birth premiered in London on 29 May followed by a screening in Glasgow on 4 June, in conjunction with the International Congress of Midwives, and Brighton on 12 June. The film has been very well attended and received, despite the challenging title. Nearly 200 midwives from around the world viewed it in Glasgow and fell in love with its beauty, honesty and the possibility it represents. A film clip is available on www.orgasmicbirth.com. Fathers-To-Be has been hosting these events and will be supporting screenings across Brittan. If you are interested in hosting a screening in your area, and/or the possibility of using the film for fundraising for your organisation, please contact Patrick Houser on 01892 890 614.

The Active Birth Centre will host a screening in London on 12 July, website for details or 020 7281 6760

May Day, A Breastfeeding talk was held in Brighton by The Drinks Are on Me author Veronika Robinson with a brief presentation by Fathers-To-Be Handbook author Patrick Houser on an evening for parents and professionals. Veronika's amazing and important new book is available at www.artofchange.co.uk

The Fathers-To-Be Handbook is finding its way nicely into the childbirth educators and birthcare professional market. It is available at a 50% discount for trade sales.

Upcoming Events:

20 June F2B Elmer Postle and Patrick Houser will be presenting a CPD/Study Day for NCT Teachers at their annual National Conference in Coventry.

30 June Fathers-To-Be will be presenting at the NCT/Sowing Seeds 4th Annual Conference, "Maternity Matters-for all?" in Manchester titled "Remembering Fathers".

19 July Father-To-Be presents at the BirthLight Refresher Weekend at Institute of Child Health, London.

Fathers-To-Be founders Elmer Postle and Patrick Houser have been chosen out of hundreds of applicants to present at the April 2009 Association of Pre and Perinatal Psychology and Health (APPPAH) semi-annual Congress in Asilimar, California. www.birthpsychology.com "Protecting the Cave...ancient archetype/modern role."

NHS Choices website is developing a Father's blog and are looking for some "fathers-to-be" who might like to post occasionally about their day to day experiences of expecting a baby. Contact: Caspar.Aremi@dh.gsi.gov.uk

We welcome 'birthing time' stories by or about fathers. Share your experience & participate in our writing project.

Books we highly recommend: Birthing Fathers, Richard K. Read, Gentle Birth Gentle Mothering, Sarah J. Buckley

REMEMBER

Research shows: Men who respond to impending fatherhood by reflecting on the way they were parented produce happier children. info@fatherstobe.org 44(0)1892 890 614 / 0208 742 2956 www.fatherstobe.org
